Volume 6, Number 3

Greetings

In just a few short weeks we'll be writing the year with those much anticipated zeros. How time flies. It seems such a short time ago when the year 2000 was still so far away. Here at New Sun Services America, we have been planning the Spring 2000 training program. Turn this page over to see the update of the current schedule, showing upcoming trainings by the Basic Training teachers, the next Analyst Training and Teacher's training.

The long-awaited arrival of Martin Grassinger to Taos is the highlight for the Spring program. Martin practiced classical homeopathy and other holistic health approaches before meeting Ra and the Human Design System seven years ago. With Ra's support he worked to integrate Design with homeopathy and today trains European analysts in the application of his unique synthesis of health and Human Design. Readers of this newsletter from earlier years fondly remember Martin's column Health and Human Design and we received many requests for classes with him. Finally, they are scheduled and you'll be able to benefit from Martin's experiments, insight and experience of many years.

We met Martin at the first Teacher's training Ra gave in December 1994. At that time, he presented some of the early findings and theories of how the chemistry of one's design functions in terms of health. It was truly exciting to hear someone integrate the mechanics into a totally different way of seeing and expressing Design. Martin's ability to use keynotes in unique and insightful ways is one of his notable traits, both as a healer and as an analyst.

The classes scheduled for this upcoming Spring will introduce the principles of Martin's work and we hope will be a foundation for having him return to give more advanced classes. Anyone who is interested in attending the classes should be very comfortable with the circuits, and though not required, the Advanced training is highly recommended. He will also be available to give individual readings. They can be booked through New Sun Services.

reflections by Zeno

Human Design has found its way into the far reaches of my perception. Its language forms my concepts and while it is essentially impossible for me to alter experience, it is possible to accept what is much more easily than before I met Design. The undefined Heart center education has been challenging, but finally learning not to even try to defend myself keeps me much healthier. As we near the magical seven-year threshold with Design, (it will be August 2000 for us) I think the cellular level of change foretold by Ra appears valid.

This past year, with so many demands on time and attention, Human Design study was pushed to the backburner. The only time I felt consciously attentive was when a student or a trainee would ask me questions. So it was with real delight that I found myself teaching the analyst training to 15 very well-prepared students in September. The students inspired me with very interesting questions and with their own designs. What totally surprised me was the realization of how deeply the knowledge had penetrated into my being. I was no longer theoretically presenting the material, but was sharing my own understanding and knowing of design through living it.

Time constraints don't allow us to mail newsletters as often as we would like. The effect is that many clients don't hear about new products. The enclosed flyer shows the products published since July.

The best way to keep up with what's up with New Sun Services is to frequently visit the news section of www.humandesignsystem.com where new products are announced the day they are available.

The website is being continuously upgraded and expanded and has recently won the 1999-2000 Golden Web Award for creativity and excellence on the World Wide Web.

Each of us has to prove design to ourselves, to know it internally, and with certainty, before we can be effective as analysts. That study begins, and ultimately remains with the experiment of living one's own Design. Human Design study is an invaluable, incomparable tool in seeing how other people's designs interact with your own. For that, the Analyst training program provides the most direct and concise route to learn how to see the fundamentals in anyone's design.

The next Analyst training is scheduled for April. We look forward to meeting a new batch of students, ready to bring Human Design and its value into the consciousness of the collective. The audience is growing day by day. We expect that within two years, demand for readings will outstrip capacity. We're happy to meet you, if this meaningful work is calling you. Based on the experience of training almost a hundred analysts, we recommend a minimum of three months to complete the Basic and Advanced trainings, (longer is better) and during that time, to listen to at least some of the classes by Ra available on tape. ■
