The Planetary Program in December

Pluto is moving very fast these days, compared to its average time of eight months in a line. Since November 14, when it left gate 14 for the next 247 years, it sped through line 1 of gate 34 and enters line 2 already on December 7. Gate 34 is pure, asexual power out of the Sacral center, unaware by itself and able to empower three other gates (57, 10, 20) through the integration channels.

In addition to the Sun's constant close companions, Mercury and Venus, Mars and Jupiter are in the same region of their orbits. As the Sun moves toward Winter solstice, the darkest days of the year, and its annual activation of the cusp hexagram 10, the four planets are close by and emphasize the themes of the season.

With Pluto in gate 34, channel 10-34, Exploration, a design of following one's conviction, gets defined first by Mars, followed by Mercury, then the Sun, and finally Jupiter in gate 10, Treading. In "from The Book of Letters," Ra writes: "This is the most complex gate that opens up out of the G center. Out of the 10th gate, three channels can be formed. The 10th gate is a behavioral bridge which links the Centering circuit to the Knowing circuit. It is the potential behavior of the Self. Before this behavior can manifest, it must be guided spontaneously by the intuition (57) from the Splenic awareness, and empowered by the Sacral

(34) and then it can manifest through the Throat in the Now (20). Treading is a gate of the Vessel, a gate of Love. It is the 10th gate which insures the perfection of our form and its survival and the conviction which guides it, is the Love of Living, of being alive."

Channel 34-10 is the power to act according to your convictions. So if you don't have those gates in your design, be aware that you are being conditioned by the planets.

After Winter solstice, the Sun moves on to the Root center, transiting six of the nine Root gates until the beginning of February. Right after Christmas, the Sun transits start with Capricorn gate 58, The Joyous, followed by the other gates fueling Splenic awareness. All the while, Earth is in the opposite sign of the zodiac, Cancer, and activates the remaining three Root gates. This happens every year at the same time, a truly fitting theme for the season. The Root center provides the fuel of vitality and for the Splenic and Emotional awarenesses.

With Mercury, Venus, Mars and Jupiter close to the Sun, the emphasis is even stronger on the Root. Uranus is also still in gate 60 in the Root. And with the South Node in gate 42 in the Sacral and the North Node in gate 32 in the Spleen, there are a few definitions of the Root gates 54 and 53. Read more about that in "Health and Human Design" on page 2.

Health and Human Design

5. About Endings

Since February of this year, the Nodes of the Moon are transiting the axis Sacral-Spleen, with the North Node in the Spleen and the South Node in the Sacral center. Since November 10, the North Node is in gate 32, the South Node in 42.

Channel 53-42, Maturation, is an Energy format of our form, our physical bodies (Ego circuit) and feeds directly into channel 54-32, Transformation, a design of being driven. Balanced and cyclical, it determines what we call "life": Everything has a beginning and an end, and in between maturation happens. Each life begins and ends with a breath, each breath has its own beginning and end and so does each beat of the heart. We have no control over that energy format of the physical - try to stop breathing - it is too important a basis for life. All we can do is shift the parameters a little. The Ambition (54) of life tolerates no interference, it installs processes permanently (32, Duration) to secure life (Transformation).

The basic cycle is the rhythm of day and night. It is never the same day: transformation has happened, all cells grew older and are a bit closer to their ends (42). From the moment of its conception, every life moves toward its end. In death finally, the body's own lysocyme and phosphorus disintegrate the cells: Transformation. The ingredients for our physical ends are with us since birth.

As Socrates drank his final cup and the paralysis almost reached his head (which led to the paralysis of his breath and death - no life without the cycle of breath) he said, "We still owe Asklepios a rooster." The rooster was a symbol: it announced the end (42) of the night, the end of a cycle, a life. And in each end there is a new beginning. Asklepios is considered the father of the healing arts, trained by Chiron. The staff of Asklepios, the erect snake, is a symbol for healing to this day.

As the Energy format for life, the 53-42 is also the Energy format of illness. As long as symptoms don't find their end (42) through healing or death, they will afflict vitality.

The energy of the South Node in gate 42 will help to end old symptoms affecting vitality and establish continuing health with the North Node in gate 32, Duration, in the Spleen. The end of the old makes room for the new. Only its end gives something its meaning. To hold on to what doesn't make sense anymore will generate suffering for body and soul. This is a time of letting go. The night ends only to bring a new day, all by itself.
