Martin's classes in Taos

This year's Human Design School training program hosts Martin Grassinger, a Human Design analyst trainer based in Hamburg, Germany. His is a special synthesis, integrating his professional work as a holistic health practitioner with eight years of intense Human Design System study.

With a profound perception on how the biology functions through the Rave, his descriptions of the centers and circuitry allow students to see the chart in a whole new light.

These classes are highly recommended for analysts and trainees looking to enhance their reading skills and gain insight into every chart, their own as well as other people's.

Open to all students with an HD Basic education.

Advanced training is helpful, as knowledge of the circuits is assumed.

Applied Circuitry April 7 9, 2000

In the energetic flows of the circuits we can see the various mechanics of the physical body. This class applies advanced understanding of circuitry to look at someone's chart and adds new keynotes to the centers as they relate to the energetic system of the body.

The Planetary Key April 11 13, 2000

The Planetary Key is a new and very exciting way to look at the planets and their significance in an individual chart. Based on both physical and psychological elements, this technique has been developed by Martin in recent years.

Both of these classes are given for the first time in America. Don't miss the beginning of an ongoing journey into Martin's fascinating applications of Human Design.

Martin is also available for individual sessions from April 1 to 16. Call for more info and to book an appointment.

Studying your own design and making the experiment begins an unfolding and a re-identification, a different description of your experience, both in the present and also in looking back on what's happened during your life. The Basic training is the most direct and concise way to meet these elements, language and applications of the Human Design System for studying yourself and others. The course has two main parts: the first part deals with what's on a chart, while the second part introduces reading the lines of the Rave I'Ching and the ephemeris.

There are four Basic trainings scheduled in the next month. (See schedule on back side.) There is also a convenient correspondence version.

The next Analyst training begins April 1. If you have yet to order the Advanced training, now's the time. This study program prepares you to speak in the language of Design, and gives lots of lesson sheets to practice and review. It's good to have a month to prepare, if you aren't yet familiar with all the gate and channel names and their keynotes.

With Martin Grassinger's upcoming classes we're presenting the first step in what we plan to be an ongoing opportunity for experienced Human Design professionals to present their own valuable findings and teach in the settings of the Human Design School. Martin was one of Ra's original students and then among the very first teachers and analyst trainers. This is his first time in America.

Another first we're pleased to announce is the Analyst Symposium, following Martin's classes in Taos, April 14 16. This is not a class but rather a conference for analysts to discuss topics important for everyone who works or wants to work professionally with Human Design. There will be guided discussions during the gathering, as well as time for an open forum. Attendees can make presentations or suggest topics and themes they feel need addressing, such as What Belongs in A Reading? How Do You Describe the Four Types? How Do You Present the Profile in a Reading? How Should the Lines be Read? What Really Works to Develop a Client Base? What would The Popularization of Design Mean for Analysts? The main objective of the gathering is to
